

Larbi Ben M'hidi University, Oum El Bouaghi
Faculty of Earth Sciences and Architecture
Geography and Urban Planning Department
Corrected Test: English language

Question 1 (8pts):

- 1 How old are you?
- 2 Where are you from ?
- 3 How many students are there in your class?
- 4 There aren't any windows in this room.
- 5 Who's that man over there? Is he a policeman?
- 6 My mother likes Mel Gibson, but she doesn't like Arnold Schwarzenegger.
- 7 We usually watch a football match on Saturday afternoon.
- 8 The school is in River Street, next to the supermarket.

Question 2 (6pts):

- 1 What's the matter? You C sad.
- 2 When is it going to stop D?
- 3 Can I A cheque?
- 4 Would you marry him if he B you?
- 5 When is that letter A?
- 6 He didn't buy that computer, C?

Question 3 (6pts):

Write a text comparing your country's geography with another one of your choice.

Answer: Algeria and Iran, despite being located in different regions of the world, exhibit fascinating geographical similarities and differences.

Both countries boast extensive desert expanses: Algeria is dominated by the Sahara Desert in its south, while Iran features the Dasht-e Kavir and Dasht-e Lut deserts in its central and eastern regions.

Additionally, both nations are characterized by majestic mountain ranges; Algeria is home to the Atlas Mountains, whereas Iran boasts the Zagros and Alborz mountain ranges.

Furthermore, Algeria's Mediterranean coastline contrasts with Iran's Caspian Sea coast, each offering unique landscapes and economic opportunities.

While sharing some geographical features, Algeria and Iran possess distinct cultural and geopolitical contexts that shape their identities and interactions with the natural environment.