The current era is witnessing a great technical progress in the field of digitization and the means and techniques of wireless communication and information. This has benefited many fields and sectors, including higher education. The latter seeks to invest this progress in order to improve the quality of university education by introducing an advanced non-visual education method that relies mainly on the means and technology of High efficiency and quality communication. This would allow the delivery of scientific material through multiple technical media in order to permit continuous learning in the place and time that suits the student, using various methods that provide educational content through a combination of written and spoken language, visual media and various audio-visual background effects. This makes education achievable in an efficient way and with the least possible effort and time. Moreover, digitization in university education helps to develop self-education skills of the learners and develop their comprehension skills further as learning becomes less restricted along with the possibility of revising the lessons more than once.

Due to the importance of digitization in higher education, many countries have paid it a great deal of attention. Digitization has, accordingly, become one of the most important measuring sticks in university ranking. Algeria, as many other countries, has encouraged this educational system and adopted it in order to offer additional learning opportunities, especially due to the increasing demand for higher education. Digitization, in this regard, will be very beneficial in minimizing additional funding given institutions' incapacity of fulfilling such needs via classical means.

From the perspective highlighted above, the present conference is held to cast some fresh light on the concept of digital or electronic learning, in general, and the extent to which it is integrated in Algerian higher education, along with the major obstacles that face its adoption and spread.

Objectives of the National Forum:

1. Expose the level of digitization in higher education in Algeria.
2. Expose the contribution of digitization to the quality of university education in Algeria.
3. Explain the role of scanning applications in detecting and preventing the plagiarism.
4. Clarify the role of digitization in the visibility and development of the Algerian university
5. Denounce the obstacles to the application of digitization in higher education.
6. Examination of the tendencies of the actors of higher education in Algeria in terms of digitization.
